

I AM FARMING GOD’S WAY!

Last year 2018, Tom Tompkins was in Ogooma and was busy farming God’s way. He was very generous to share his skills with the community members with the help of Augustine the former farm manager of TOUCH Ministries. We stumbled upon a family where this is being implemented. They testified that they used skills taught from the training to farm and it has given them produce way improved than they did before. His neighbors are interested in knowing the secret and he is sharing with them.

The family of Ogaita Julius Robert (38) a resident of Kalapata – Amee village started farming God’s way and their garden is very productive. They have 9 children, 3 of whom TOUCH sponsors their education. He sends his thanks for the tips given to him and is grateful.

The eggplant and sweet potato garden where the methods were applied.

The produce.

The eggplant is tasty too.

We hope to see more people farming this way in order to improve their lives.

Point to Note

TOUCH adapted these methods but due to large-scale farming, it is difficult to get grass for mulching and ant-hills to use as fertilizer. However, TOUCH is still understanding how to preserve grass in order to use as mulch.

- Special thanks to Tom Tompkins.
